

#144 Write about swimming.

 thelifeofmine3.wordpress.com/2024/03/13/write-about-swimming/

March 14, 2024

Person 1: Ever accidentally swallowed pool water or had a goggle malfunction during a swim?

Person 2: Oh, definitely! My dad usually drags me into the deep water because I can't swim. He leaves me there, and I end up merging with the water, even drinking it. Back in my hometown, people use that water for everything, like for everything. (Code red)

Person 1: That sounds wild. Any funny moments from swim practices that still crack you up?

Person 2: Oh, water and I, we've got this funny connection. Once, I took a river bath from mid-morning till noon. Didn't realize I was turning into a tan snack under the heat. It took me three months to recover from my unintentional tan skin!

Person 1: Hilarious! How about a quick story about a memorable, lighthearted experience with your swim teammates?

Person 2: Oh, for sure! During Pongal with my cousin sister, we spent the last vacation together. We used her bath, towel for fishing and swam with less water but not too deep. It was a riot.

Person 1: Any funny encounters with pool toys or unexpected items in the water?

Person 2: I use to have bring a plastic tube for sitting, and my little brothers, when they were kids, grabbed it to go deep. Once, I found out a non-gold ring from there, and a sneaky relative claimed it!

Person 1: Haha, sneaky indeed! And how about wardrobe malfunctions or costume mishaps during swim events?

Person 2: Changing clothes in open places is a struggle. Never tried it in a swimming pool, but with rivers, lakes, and ponds, it's an adventure. After all the fun, changing clothes, mostly in the car, feels uncomfortable. You know, too obvious to wear what I was wearing.